Biography

Kimberly Duane has worked in education for twenty three years, the last three and a half in Randolph as the Student Services and Social Emotional Learning (SEL) coordinator. In this role, she spearheaded the addition of the Toolbox SEL curriculum in elementary schools, the use of the DESSA SEL assessment tool, and BRYT programs in both the middle and high schools. She also worked closely with our families and students in transition, as well as our nursing and counseling departments.

Prior to coming to Randolph, Kim spent eighteen years in Carver Public Schools working as a school social worker and then as the middle high school Guidance Department Chair. In these roles, she counseled students and families, responded to crisis situations, evaluated educators, and collaborated with the leadership team in improving the programs and services available to the school community.

Kim graduated from Boston University with a BA in Psychology and a minor in Sociology, and earned her Masters degree in Social Work from Simmons College. Since working in an educational setting, she has supplemented her education by taking a variety of courses, including Analyzing and Evaluating Teaching, Data in Education, and SEI, believing that learning is a lifelong process.

Ms. Duane knows that partnering with families, supporting educators, and collaborating with community-based organizations are key components in creating a school environment in which students feel safe, supported, and able to grow academically, socially, emotionally, and behaviorally. Kim strives to create a learning community where every member feels valued, included, respected, and empowered to achieve their fullest potential.
